HORRIBLY SCALDED:

A Baby Falls Into a Kettle of Boiling Brine.

Calvin, the three-year-old son of W. K. Walker, was frightfully scalded on Wednesday last at the parents' residence on Channel street, near Aurora, by falling into a large kettle or boiling brine which the cook had just removed from the stoy.

The child stumbled over it while walking backwards, sitting down in it and splashing the brine over its body and legs, and the skin came off in large patches. The burns are so extensive that there is doubt whether the baby will recover. Drs. Harkness and Gibbons are in attendance.

The reporter followed one of the trails to police Meadquarters, but no one there knew anything about the case. Nothing was on the morning report to indicate that anyone had been arrested for deeds of violence and bloodshed, yet there lay the bloody trail in and out of the office.

Following the gory track in the other direction, the reporter met a citizen and asked if he knew anything of the case. Resaid: "I met a man going up street very early this morning. I saw he was hort and asked him what was the matter. 'Oh,' said he, 'the ---- cut my guts out, but I shot twice at him. A dector sewed me up, but I can see my guts yet and I am going up here to have the job done over.'

The reporter followed the trail up Main street and to the office of Dr. Beede. It was fresh save where the sprinklers and brooms of the morning had washed and brushed it away. Ruge drops of blood were drying in front of Dr. Beede's door; but Dr. Gieses said Dr. Beede was at Lodi last night and bad not re-turned. He, himself, knew nothing of the

Down the street and to Dr. Czartoryski's office was the next move. The dector had dressed a wound on a man's wri-t. It was about an inch long and had been made by glass, he said, which had grazed the ulua and marked the radial artery. There was no trail of blood to the doctor's door, and if this was the p rson seen in the morning by the citizen on the street, there had been two rights- one after the out on the wrist. By order of General James H. Budd, Willfam A. Gibson, Major and A. A. G., Brigade, N. G. O., to-day issued the following general orders No. 7:

The General commanding, with great regret, announces to the Third Brigade the retirement from active service of Colonel Eugene Lehe, commanding the Sixth Infantry Regiment.

Colonel Lohe has been identified with the Third Brigade for many years, and is and always has been a most efficient officer. He has taken a mest active interest in all pertaining to the N. O. C., and it is in great part due to him that there is an organized regiment in the brigade. His retirement is a great less to the regiment, the brigade and the N. G. C.

Colonel Lobe's retirement will be regretted by all, for he was a thorough officer and the thisn. He sorved throughout the civil war fafter serving as a member of Company E. 59th New York militiat, onlisting as a higher in the United States army on May 1, 1861. He was commissioned Benead Lileutenant of Company C, Second California Infantry Vol. uniters, on January 5, 1865. He resigned on July 31, 1865, and entisted in the City Guned of Stockton on July 11, 1866. He was missic First Licuteural on July 13th of the game year, and Captain on February 23, 1887.
