We have heard from various sources that

... that the amounts pledged by individuals on subscription lists would be promptly paid to meet the obligation. But when the emergency which gave rise to the loan had passed, many of the subscribers forgot their pledges; and these victims of misplaced confidence were obliged to pay up some $102 each to meet the note, interest and costs. Some naturally desired to reimburse the selves for an outlay made for the public good. Messrs. WRIGHT, STUBBS and GIBSON secured the old subscription lists and are making every effort to collect by course of law a portion at least of the monies pledged them during the times that tried men's souls—and pocketbooks. On Saturday last, before Justice Harlan, these gentlemen brought suit on the subscription list against JOHN H. SMALLEY, by way of a commencement. The defendant plead that the amount for which he was sued had been paid as nominalized in the bond. The jury failed to agree upon a verdict, and the case will come up again to-morrow.
In the next case, wherein CHARLES SIMONIZ failed to appear, judgment for the amount and costs was rendered against him, and has already been brought against three other parties, and the case set for Saturday next.
The plaintiffs in these cases seem to feel intimidated at least one hundred dollars' worth each, and evince a firm determination to crowd the mourners and demonstrate the fact that a free and great government for which the subscribers would sacrifice all their wife's relatives and their committee's last bottom dollar, is worth preserving—but that the bill must be paid. In a spirit of malice toward none but charity for all, we assure our friends that although there is some of our ...
On Thursday last, before Justice Jones, the case of Hornsby vs. Carrere, involving the right to certain ... failed of reaching a conclusion, on account of the obtuseness of the jury which failed to discern a verdict under the circumstances. At a subsequent trial the jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff.
On Saturday, before Justice Harlan, A. N. Yancey brought suit against his old client Pat Cynell, just by way of keeping his hand in. The suit was to recover $25 on account of professional services. A verdict was given by jury in the sum of $10 in favor of Yancey, while Pat claimed an appeal.
A New Book.
Mrs. N. M. Henry is canvassing our community for "The Handwriting of God in Egypt's Sands and The Holy Land," by Rev. Dr. Knapp, being the records of a journey from the Mississippi Valley to the sacred places in the east. The work is entirely devoid of attempt at rhetorical flight and elaborate theories, but is written in a manner which cannot fail to instruct and entertain the general reader. We are informed that it is contemplated to form Bible classes for the purpose of instruction in the Scriptures, and that this work will be taken as a guide and assistant in the study of the divine records.
